INTRODUCTION

The original set of entry rules came from a book by John R. Hill.

Long Entry Rules

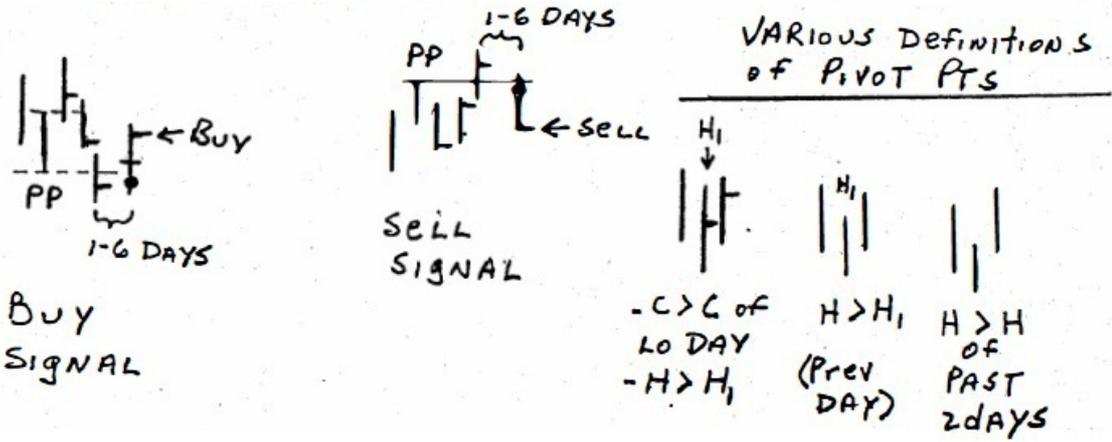

Pivot Point Low: Lowest point in a movement prior to penetration of a daily high. Close must be above previous close on day of penetration of that high.

After pivot point, wait for penetration of that low. Go long on the close of day that:

1. Closes above two previous closes.
2. Close is above the pivot point low.
3. Close is above opening price and above the midrange of the day action.
4. This day range is greater than the previous day's range.
5. This reversal day occurs no later than six days after penetration of pivot point low.

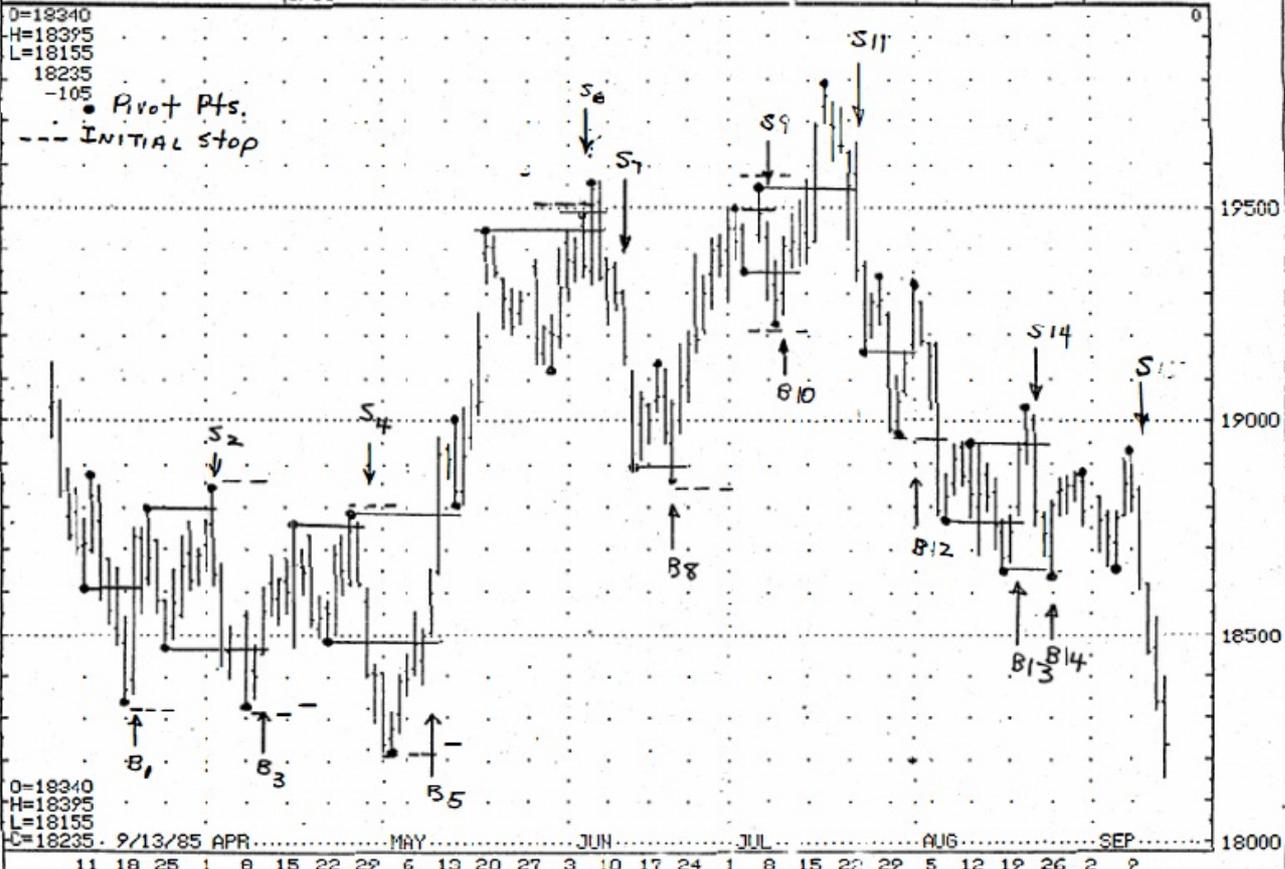

Short Entry Rules

Exact opposite of the above. In other words, look for penetration of pivot point high and then a reversal down.
