Good to know, thanks for confirming. As you're aware, i'm still getting used to these triggers. As the trigger was from a down bar with high volume i'm programmed to look for longs. I saw the ND at 10:10 and 10:35 GMT and wondered. Something to blog about!

Triggers are just about the only thing I trade (other than low volume retraces in a confirmed trend)... always looking for tests, ND's etc... off the high volume triggers or swing highs, lows etc (per my trigger and tests posts)...

You need to be open minded with triggers... if price moves up away and then comes back down the yes we start looking for a test / NS at the trigger... as soon as we get below the trigger then we need to put on our bear caps and see if it gets tested from below...
