

The Trader's Hill

- Following your system and using proper money management leads to consistent profits.
- Seeing the consistent profits makes it easy to accept these good habits and makes it easier to follow them.
- In other words, it leads to more positive behaviour.

- Not following your system and not using proper money management leads to losses.
- These losses lead to revenge trading, jumping from system to system, and an inability to accept losses.
- In other words, it leads to more negative behaviour.

Disciplined Trading

Chaos

Conclusion: Act like a disciplined trader. Slowly you will climb the hill and become one.
